SUMMER '11

By: Shannon Boyle

Most students count down the days until their summer vacation. They look forward to family vacations, free time, sleeping late, going to the beach, and other fun activities. Summer means lazy days, lounging around, and making up for lost time with good friends. Summer is also less stressful with no homework, tests, or quizzes.

Barbecuing and fireworks on the Fourth of July are American summer traditions. Students at Jonathan Dayton spend their Independence Day in various ways. Senior Zack Kadish "spent the day relaxing by [his] pool with friends and family, followed by a fireworks display." Other students said that they also had barbecues with friends and family.

Besides all the fun and games over the summer, a lot of students had summer jobs. Some babysat while others worked at the mall. Senior Max Grossman was a camp counselor at Jeff Lakes Day Camp and spent his summer days canoeing and swimming with his campers. "I loved working at camp because it didn't feel like a real job," said Max.

Whether it was relaxing at the beach or working at the mall, Dayton students love their summer vacations.

Prom 2011

By Krista Delia

Leaving school early, rushing to hair, nail, and makeup appointments and taking pictures made up the day of prom preparations, senior Leah Cunningham described. Prom 2011 occurred May 26, 2011 and was held at the Westin Hotel in Morristown, New Jersey. Upperclassmen walked the red carpet and danced the night away as Hollywood stars. The theme "Classic Hollywood" was evident throughout the entire ballroom; the black, red and gold colors filled the room along with popcorn filled centerpieces.

Senior Tara Strober, who won Prom Princess, described the prom as having, "great food and great music!" Senior Tyler Bujnowski, Prom Prince, accompanied Tara Strober for the annual Prom Prince and Princess dance at the end of the night.

Without the hard work and dedication of the prom committee, prom would not have been as successful as it could have been. Mr. Denicolo, advisor of Prom Committee, described planning prom as, "tons of work and fundraising!" Mr. Denicolo advises future Prom Committees to, "fundraise! It takes money to make prom a success."

Together, with the elaborate fundraising and planning of the prom committee, as well as the unity of each student, prom night turned out as expected- an amazing night to remember.

PEP RALLY

"Be true to your School"
- Beach Boys

At the beginning of every school year the whole student body gathers together to cheer on the sports teams. As the students are walking to the pep rally the hallways are filled with sounds from the cheerleaders, the band, and the students cheering loudly. The cheerleaders start off with the initial cheer, which gets the Dayton crowd pumped and excited for the first pep rally of the year. The gym is covered in blue and orange representing true Dayton colors. Senior Matt Samansky said, "Pep Rallies bring the whole school together, by bringing every grade into one room and showing their school spirit."

With the whole school showing its spirit, it made this year's pep rally seem better than ever. The crowd went into an uproar when the football and soccer teams were announced because everyone knows those Bulldogs have winning seasons. When asked how this pep rally was different from the past years, Scott Sandler said, "[He] felt as if there was a feeling of nostalgia as [he] looked around the gym and saw all the underclassmen."

As each year passes pep rallies become louder and more energetic making them unforgettable.

INTERCLASS GAMES

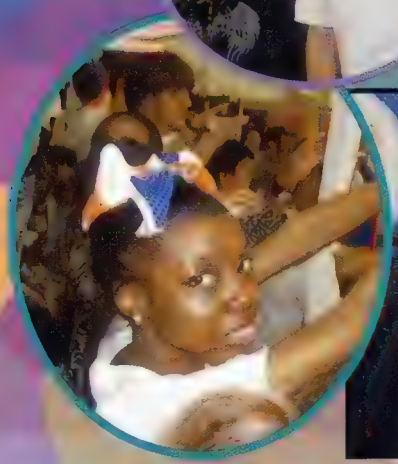

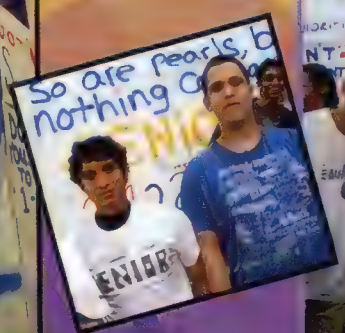

"A group that has a good name, that makes you feel you come
And it's not just a game"
Talk Negro

BY IMAN BAPTIST

Every year the entire student body and faculty come together for Interclass Games where students compete against each other. Many students look forward to spirit week and the excitement of Interclass Games that comes at the end of the week. It shows the true spirit of the battle of the classes in all grades, 9-12. Everyone has a chance to stand up for their grade and show the school which class is actually the best. It is said that the senior class usually takes over every year during Interclass Games and this year was no different, leaving the seniors superior once again! The best part of Interclass Games is that anyone can participate. The class president for each grade is in charge of selecting the students for participation in each of the events. Some of the student body felt 'Tug of War' and 'Egg Toss' were the best games overall, but "Bobbing for Apples' and "Pie Eating" were the least favorite. Next year is already awaiting to see which grade will hold the spot at Jonathan Dayton as the best.

Dayton Students show school spirit!

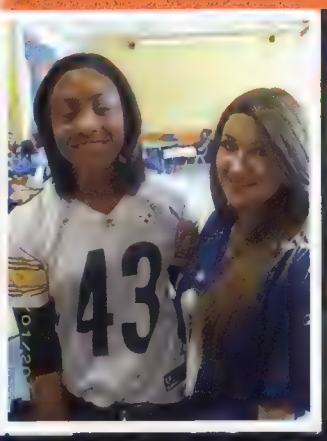

Spirit Week

BY Michelle Chapman

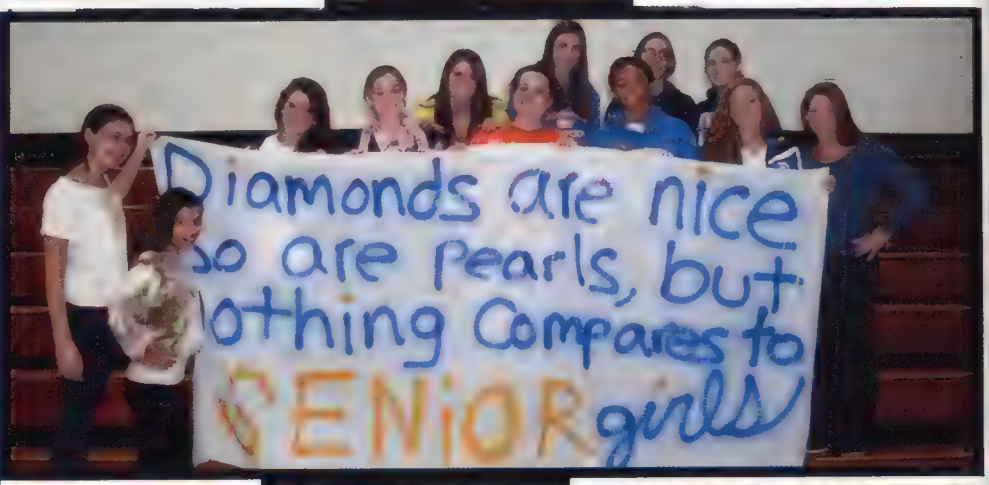

Spirit week is an annual tradition at Jonathan Dayton High School. It is the week preceding homecoming, and it helps to build up spirit in the school in an effort to get everyone excited for the homecoming game and dance.

Senior Cassidy Ebert feels that Spirit Week is an important week and helps to bring the school together. Ebert's favorite days of spirit week is black and orange day, as well as class colors day, because "that's the day your class really comes together and friendly competition is fun." When people dress the same way, it brings them together.

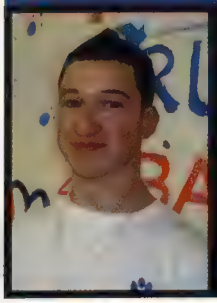

If Ebert were to have her own day of spirit week it would be "Glitter Day". No matter what the theme is, spirit week continues to bring classes together and create a sense of school spirit for everyone.

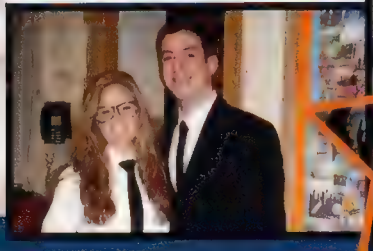

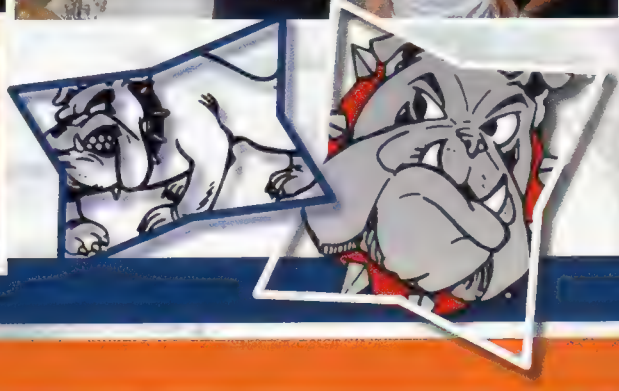

IT'S LUNCH TIME!!!!

By AnaVizotto

"RINGGGGGG!!!" The bell rings. It doesn't matter if it's forth, fifth, or sixth period, the sound of that bell is the sound of relief to students. Lunchtime has become so much more than just a time to eat. However, while walking around the cafeteria one starts to notice students doing other things besides eating. Some students spend this time studying, doing homework, and selling chocolate or tickets for either Homecoming or the next spirit bus. Senior Angela Berardinelli claims, "Lunchtime is the best time to sell the carnations for yearbook and it's the only time where I see all my friends and I'm able to talk to all of them."

When it comes to the food from the cafeteria, everyone seems to really enjoy it, evident by the size of the lunch line everyday. "The lunch line is one of the most annoying things about the cafeteria in school," states Summer Klarfeld. She further explains how sometimes it becomes a race with other students of who makes it to the cafeteria, gets their lunch and pays for it before the line gets huge.

But this school year, a new part of the cafeteria was opened specifically for cold lunches. "That was the best thing the people from the cafeteria have ever come up with. It definitely made the lunch line go by quicker," states Dillon Reiss about the separation of hot and cold lunch lines. Lunch is the time when students are finally able to socialize with their friends and sometimes even make new ones.

Homecoming

There is one very important event for Dayton students that is typically near Halloween and concludes the well-known "Spirit Week." Not to mention one of our football games it devoted to this special celebration. It's the Homecoming dance, which is often thought about months prior to its announcement. Girls finalize their outfits, students vote to declare the nominees of the Homecoming court which announced the day before the dance, while seniors vote for superlatives. However, the day of the dance is the most important. In preparation for looking her best, Christina Montesano "… shower[s], do[es] [her] nails, do[es] [her] hair, do[es] [her] makeup and then go[es] [to] get dressed with [her] friends before the dance." So while students are putting last touches on their outfits the Student Council from Dayton creates the dance floor in the Main Gym. "Everyone has to work together to put up all decorations, blow up balloons and make sure everything is organized for the dance," says Dayton senior Molly Gozlan.

There are many different things going on the night of Homecoming. Some students dance, some take pictures with friends, some munch on snacks and some wait patiently for the announcements of the superlative and Homecoming Court winners. Superlative voting happens weeks before Homecoming, while homecoming court nominations are voted at the dance. Winner of senior superlative "Most Contagious Laugh," Arlenis Rodriguez says, "I was surprised, I didn't even think I was going to win."

Overall this year's Homecoming seemed to be different especially for graduating seniors. Because it was her last celebration, Senior Kelsey Ricci felt that "[she] could party harder." Ricci also noted that, "it was better because […] more people showed up." A bigger crowd is always more fun, which seemed to be the case at this year's 2011 Homecoming.

We're Gonna Party Like, Like It's 2012."

Express Yourself

By: Angela Berardinelli

Walking through the halls of Jonathan Dayton High School there are many students who are unique in their own way. Expressing oneself means showing what kind of student a person is through the things that person enjoys doing. Some students express themselves through their fashion, music, artistic abilities, and personality.

Senior Arlenis Rodriguez says, "I choose to express myself through my unique fashion by wearing bright colors in my outfits." Rodriguez wears bright colors to show that she is a fun and energetic person. Shannon Boyle expresses herself through dancing when having to choreograph her own dances. Boyle says," Dancing makes me happy and relieves my stress."

Through listening or playing music, as in Johnny Ferreira's case, wearing clothes that reflects one's personality, and participating in activities outside of school, allows each person to be unique, and have their own identity.

Lower Right: Shannon Boyle loves to represent her dance studio "Starstruck" on the back of her car.

Most students at Jonathan Dayton look forward to their seventeenth birthdays for one reason: to get their licenses. Buying a car is one of the biggest accomplishments for most students, particularly if they bought it themselves. Having a license and a car gives students the capabilities to do what they want and go wherever they'd like. Aubrey Marcantonio "like[s] having [her] license and a car because [she] [doesn't] have to depend on anybody to do things for [her] or take [her] places."

Having a car gives students freedom and independence, but this freedom also comes with a lot of responsibility. This is especially true for the 2012 seniors because new laws were enforced in 2010, causing new drivers to follow an 11 o'clock curfew. In addition to an earlier curfew, they also can only drive with one other person in the car, even if that person is a family member. Still, students do not seem to mind following these laws for a year, for they are so grateful to be able to drive on their own.

Many students are very happy with their cars, but there is always something they would like to improve. If Dayton senior Max Grossman could change one thing about his car, he would "paint it black. [He's] always wanted a black car." But Max is still very happy about his car, for it has taken him to visit his brother at the University of Delaware, which he loves to do. He hopes one day to take a cross- country road trip to California.

Whether it's getting to a target destination, or just driving around Springfield, Dayton students love their cars, and the freedom that comes with it.

Jobs

by Ross Dorman

"Everybody's Working for the Weekend"
-Boston

When the students of Jonathan Dayton aren't busy hitting the books, many of them are working or volunteering at part-time jobs. From setting up parties to saving the day, our students work hard at a wide range of jobs. Kelsey Ricci who works at the Ice Hut in Springfield claims that "free ice cream" is her favorite thing about where she works, but she mainly works to make spending money.

While Kelsey pushes ice cream on people, Shannon Boyle helps people work it off. Shannon works as a dance instructor at Starstruck Dance Studio in Sterling. She loves dance so much that she "doesn't feel like [she's] working" when she's there.

While Shannon teaches people dance moves, Krista Delia and Scott Sandler help people who want to do other forms of physical activity. They work at the Summit Ski and Sport shop where Krista "learn [s] something new every day." However, not all students work for pay.

Leah Cunningham volunteers at the Pet Smart in Union on Sundays, taking care of cats that are up for adoption, and helping them find a place to live. "I volunteer because I enjoy seeing the animals being put in a loving home and [being] given a nice life."

Whether they get paid for the job that they do, or do it simply out of the goodness of their hearts, the students of Jonathan Dayton certainly work hard.

Vesna Stoicovici and Brett Biebelberg help save the day when they volunteer on the Springfield First Aid Squad.

FACULTY

Ms. Elizabeth Cresci,
Principal

Administration

Mr. Ronald Slate,
Assistant Principal

Dear Member of the Jonathan Dayton School Community, most especially the members of the Class of 2012.

Congratulations on your many individual accomplishments as well as the many collaborative efforts that have made our school a model of community service. As I reflect upon our work this year, I am so proud of the actors and craftsmen who told The Story Of Anne Frank, the many club members who championed tolerance and advancement for all citizens, and all the students who sought to make the most of their time at JDHS. From our Mock Trial Champions to the Key Club event planners, our students underscore what Sir Ken Robinson asserts in The Element : it is so important to find the point at which an individual's natural talent meets his or her personal passion – that is where we find our element.

We know that each year at Jonathan Dayton is a single step in your life's path, and we hope that the year has been filled with the exploration of your own creativity and intelligence. I speak for the faculty and staff when I say that we are proud to have been mentors and coaches and watched our students grow and mature into scholars, artists, and athletes who are filled with confidence and big dreams for the future.

To the Class of 2012, we have given you the tools you will need to find your "element" and we hope that you will find your place in the world and that it will be filled with good health and the joy that only personal achievement can bring.

Best wishes for continued success.

Elizabeth Cresci, Principal

Dear Student Body,

It has been my pleasure to have had the opportunity to share in many of the memorable moments here at JDHS this year. Whether it was welcoming the Freshman class in September, watching sporting events, dances, plays or concerts, I am proud to have been a part of the Dayton community in my new role this year.

Dayton is a special place for so many different reasons, but the best reason is because of you, the student body. I hope you have enjoyed this year, and for those of you that will be returning next year, I challenge you to take a bigger role in the Dayton community. Do your part to make this school a better place for all, do your part to make yourself a better person. Although it may seem like an eternity, the time you spend here at Dayton will be over in a flash, but the memories will last a lifetime.

To the Senior Class, I wish nothing but the best for you. We have prepared you to the best of our ability and now it is up to you to take charge and go out into the world and do great things. I look forward to sharing in all of your future achievements! Go Bulldogs!

CLUBS

National Art Honors Society

By Christina Apicella

National Art Honors Society is a club that has so much to offer. Advisor Mrs. Delikaris goes above and beyond for everyone offering different activities to participate in and even organizing field trips. Meeting on Fridays during Activity period, club members choose to either sketch, paint or even work with clay. The greatest part about this club is students don't have to be artists to become members of this club. Senior Rachel Zolotarsky claims, "It is a great way to relax and get in touch with your creative side."

Every year this club holds an event where new members are inducted. There's food, speeches and awards given, especially to recognize graduating seniors. "One fun perk," says Delikaris, "is every senior member of the club receives a rainbow tassel for graduation; it's a fun way to represent your inner artist."

By Shannon Boyle,

National Honors Society

Each year during the first week of December, the most intelligent students in Dayton look forward to the National Honors Society induction ceremony. Students inducted into NHS must have a 3.60 unweighted GPA, must be involved in many other school activities, and must demonstrate good character. In addition, once inducted, NHS members are required to perform 10 hours of community service throughout the school year. Senior Molly Krumholz "tutors many students in all grade levels as [her] community service project." National Honors Society inductees are not only intelligent, but give back to the Dayton community.

Key Club

By Summer Klarfeld

Key club is an internationally recognized club in which students dedicate their efforts towards helping others. "Key club is more about what the students can do for the club, not what the club can do for the students," stated President Dawn Wilkenfeld. Advised by Mr. Tedesco, the club's officers are junior Dawn Wilkenfeld, President, senior Maya Nisani, Vice President, senior Jessica Honer, Secretary, and junior Tamara Vega, Treasurer.

Key club not only helps students with volunteer work, but it also helps students get involved with the community and in the school as well as feeling good about making a difference. Maya Nisani claims her favorite part about Key Club is when she sees the results of the people or animals the club is donating to. "I love getting pictures from the seeing eye foundation."

Doing for others is what really makes being a part of this club so rewarding.

Alternatives Club

By Michelle Hargrove

Alternatives Club is a club that focuses on finding alternatives to alcohol and drugs. They have events such as movie night and multi-cultural feasts to provide an alternative to students to gather together in a drug free and alcohol free environment. Senior Maya Nisani takes this club extremely seriously, because "it focuses on what [she] believe[s] outside of school. "Alternatives club has made Maya feel good about herself. She is thankful to Mrs. Sista for influencing and encouraging the club members to stay away from drugs by sharing stories of her own.

Volunteer Club

By Molly Krumholz

The Volunteer Club provides students the opportunity to help others and give back to the community. Senior volunteer club member Shannon Boyle says, "Everyone works together well and it's nice to give back to others." The club has been successful and has benefitted others in a positive manner. It "impacts others' lives by making others feel more a part of the community and more involved," claims Boyle, "and makes [her] feel more involved in the community by being able to make a difference with [her] actions."

Some of the events the volunteer club organizes are Senior Citizen Breakfasts, the senior citizen Prom, visiting Children's Specialized Hospital, and newly added Relay for Life. President Max Grossman says, "My favorite event is the Senior Citizens Breakfast because I am able to interact with others and make the senior citizens happy and I enjoy organizing the event."

New club advisors Mr. Salmon and Mr. Cohane are doing a great job and Grossman says, " They have dealt with the activities like they have been running the club for years." The club is sure to thrive for years to come.

Model U.N.

By Rachel Miller

Model UN is a fun and exciting club that can also benefit students both academically and personally. According to Dayton Senior and Model UN president, Jesse Benzell, "Model UN is a club where students pursue their loves of travel, networking with intelligent high school students, learn about international issues, develop public speaking skills, and most importantly, practice skills in compromise deal-making, and consensus building that are so necessary in today's break neck speed globalized world of bio-enhanced digital social networking 2.0."

The members of Model UN meet in Mr. Russo's room to discuss JHUMUNC

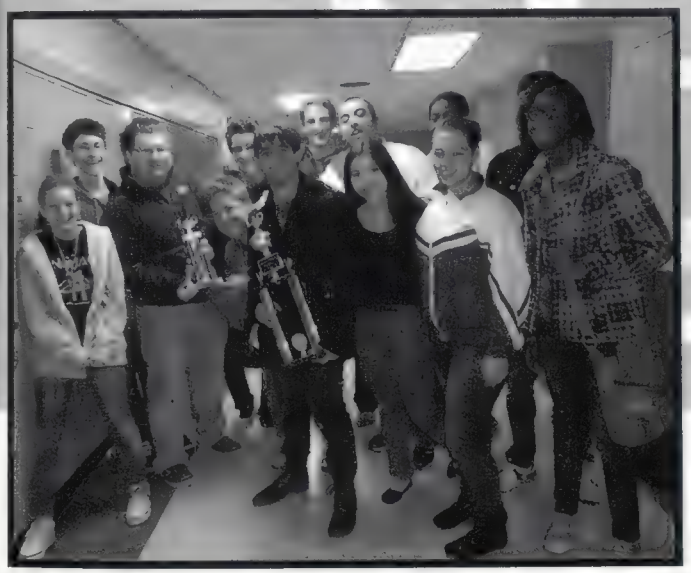

Going on trips is one of the most enjoyed aspects of Model UN. Jesse Benzell said, "the schedule is always changing, but one trip that [students] have made consistently since [his] involvement has been the trip to Baltimore where [students] attend John's Hopkins University Model United Nation Conference, or JHUMUNC. It was [his] first trip, and is many of [their] member's favorites.

Environmental Club

By Stephy Olickal

Although we can do a lot to clean up pollution after it is in the environment, avoiding pollution in the first place is even better. The Environmental Club at Jonathan Dayton High School has been in the process of protecting the environment since 2008. Club members strive to increase environmental awareness among the students and to make changes in the school itself. Mr. Davision, along with club members, are trying to get a water vending machine in campus so students are not throwing away bottles. They also plan to plant trees around the campus and do river clean up. Environmental Club has recycling bin set up in all classrooms in hopes to reduce and recycle the tremendous amount of papers that are being thrown out. "I hope [students] get inspired to keep going and do more environmental things," Mr. Davison, club advisor, expresses. You can also join Environmental Club in making the world a better place to live in one step at a time.

Quiz Bowl

By Angela Berardinelli & Ana Vizotto

This year Quiz Bowl consisted of approximately fifteen members who met four times a month with Advisor Dr. Trueger to be quizzed on a variety of trivia questions. Quiz Bowl members then participate in statewide knowledge competitions in which they are challenged to answer questions on topics such literature, history, science, mathematics, sports, etc. There are two teams, the A team, and the B team. The A team is generally regarded as the more experienced and competitive team. In December 2011, the A Team came in 3rd place at a Quiz Bowl competition held in Leonia High School. Members beamed with pride bringing the 3rd Place trophy back to Dayton.

Spanish Club

The Spanish club brings together students from Jonathan Dayton who are interested in the Spanish culture as well as learning how it is different from their own. This is why senior Maya Nisani joined Spanish club during her sophomore year of high school. "All the trips and the different activities like watching Spanish movies" intrigued Nisani and prompted her to join this fun club. "The Spanish club meets about once a month and [has] morning breakfast[s] [monthly]," says Nisani. Spanish club went to see Spanish dancing shows, took trips to a variety of restaurants and, even recently, went to a cooking school to learn how to cook Spanish cuisine. Would Nisani recommend others to join Spanish club? Yes! "Spanish club is extremely fun and we even learn Spanish dancing!" says Nisani.

French club is designed for students to immerse themselves in the French culture and language. Five presidents consisting of Francisco Mena, Cara Bibbo, Erica Korieocha, Kristin Hankerson and Molly Gozlan run this club with the help of Madame Caulfield.

According to Bibbo,"Anyone can join French club! You don't have to take French to be in it," with a remarkable number of 50 members joined. French club is also a very entertaining club where students get to go on trips. Gozlan mentioned "[they] go on about three or more trips per year to restaurants, museums, and plays." Mena also brings up how, "Madame Caulfield plays a huge role in the club with helping to approve trips and pass them through Mrs. Cresci, while making sure the trips are realistic and grounded, but always fun too."

Throughout the year, there are many times where the club has Café Vendredi. Hankerson loves Café Vendredi explaining how, " It is a Friday breakfast where [we] only speak French. [we] have hot chocolate, croissants, French cookies and a lot more!"

There are also many memories in French club and Madame's favorite was, "Seeing Les Miserables at Paper Mill Playhouse." Korieocha's advice for future students interested in French would be, "learn to enjoy French outside the classroom and have fun with it!"

Italian Club

The Italian club, run by Professore Fabiano, had close to forty members this year. Italian club meets about two times a month to discuss charity and holiday baskets as well as field trips. Students love being a part of the club because they say it is fun and exciting.

Michael Sandford explains that his favorite memory is going to the Mozzarella Factory and seeing how the cheese is produced and manufactured. On this trip we also get to sample cheese with bread.

Every member in the Italian club is asked to bring in Italian food products from their home. After a couple weeks of collecting we put all the food together and create a huge basket! Matt Samansky says, "I love participating in making holiday baskets, it's so much fun and the baskets are filled with the most amazing Italian food!"

Chess Club

Article by Iman Baptist
Photos by Krista Delia

The members of the chess club consider themselves to be very skilled players. Due to the fact that no one has a higher authority than the other, everyone is balanced on the same pedestal. Anyone has a chance to become a member. All a student has to do is come to meet every Thursday during activity period. In Mr. Russo's words he "loves the level of competition and how students try to improve their skill in play."

The downside of the competitions is the difficulty in finding other competitive schools to compete with. The competitions are won by individual students of the team, not the team as a whole. The chess club members are always looking forward to new participants!

Junior Statesmen of America

JSA (Junior State of America) is one of Dayton's many growing clubs. This particular club, run by Mrs. Cokeing, offers students with an interest in politics an opportunity to learn a little bit more about how government works and allows them to debate current topics. Scott Sandler, President of JSA, describes what they discuss as "...all sorts of topics ranging from politics to pop culture to social issues." According to Sandler, the club "welcome[s] everyone who is willing to speak up and speak their mind." The club meets weekly, goes on several trips in which key political issues are discussed, and, of course, is always accepting new members.

Medical Careers Club

By Stephy Olickal

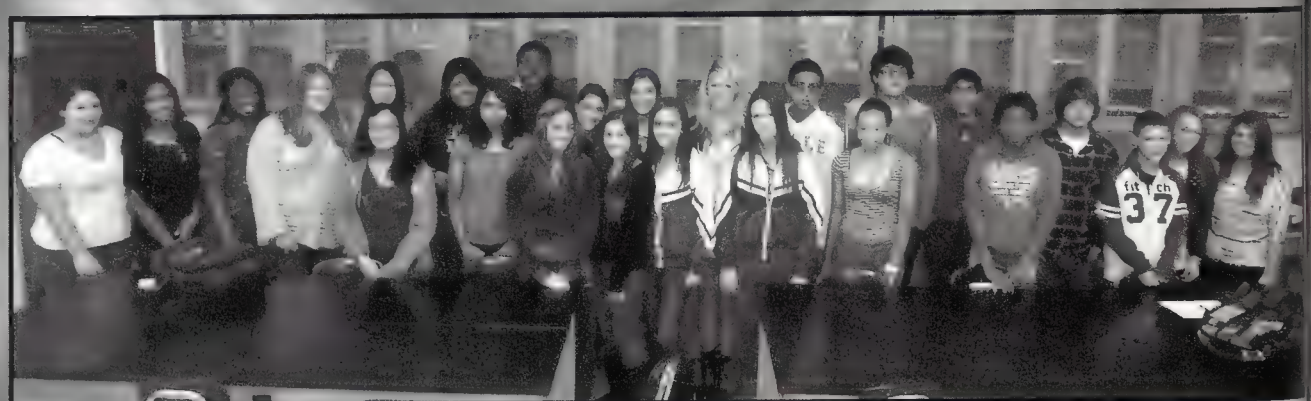

Being one of the most popular clubs in Jonathan Dayton High School, Medical Careers Club has a lot to offer to the students this year. This club aims to increase awareness about the various medical careers for students and also to raise money to donate to medical funds for research. It also strives to provide students with volunteer opportunities in hospitals and health care facilities to get experience.

This club was started about ten years ago by some dedicated students who met in Mrs. Ornovitz room during their lunch periods. It has now grown to about fifty to seventy kids over the years. Medical Careers Club is involved in donating magazines to Overlook Hospital. The club also increases the holiday spirit by bringing baked goods during Thanksgiving to show their appreciation to the employees' hard work. Visiting Ronald's Nursing Home is also another huge project that the club members look forward to. They visit the nursing home with the baked goods and play bingo with the residents. Aside from attending trips, Medical Careers organizers host a panel discussion every year. Professionals attend this panel and they share their experiences with the students.

The Medical Careers Club hopes to gain more student involvement while also examining closely to women's health issues around the world.

MOCK TRIAL

"Who is your opponent? He does not exist...Why doesnt he exist? Because he is a mere dissenting voice of the truth I speak!"
-Great Debators

By Iman Baptist

Jonthan Dayton's Mock Trial members, Harris Laufer, Evan Krupp, Emma Mcgrath, Christoper Sclazo, Jeffrey Sablosky, Jesse Benzell, Jack Finnegan, Charles Melman, and Ethan Crasto have been the talk of the town. The members go on trips to compete against other mock trials in hopes of becoming the best and the process into being a part of the team is like none other. "The process is extremely rigorous and involves outstanding dedication and hard work," says Harris Laufer. To the team members, "competitions are usually fun and extremely inquisitive." Some may becoming lawyers in the near future, but they have no problem defending their honor! Most of the information the members use are usually drawn back from prior years and they use them now for assured assistance. Although the members' hard work consists of long hours, it shows during their trials. Usually the trials are similar to the realistic trials of what you may see on television and sometimes in movies, with questions like, "Did you commit the crime or not?" or "Who is the witness you will cross examine?" Just like Law & Order, these students at Jonathan Dayton are eager to crack the case as well.

Advised by Mrs. Gutierrez, the Amnesty Club is a human rights club which funds the school's only orphan, who's name is Aung Aung Helping out people in other countries is a main goal. Senior Molly Gozlan is an active member of the Amnesty Club. Her favorite memory was "getting a christmas card from our orphan and knowing that he's doing well because of the things we have done for him." Math League is a fun, easy, non-committal club for all math lovers. A test is distributed once a month during activity period and those that are interested may come and attempt to solve the six challenging questions. There is no homework required or any time outside of activity period. Practice tests are offered to those that strive to succeed on the next test. Dayton junior Tommy Kirk has participated in math league since his freshman year and he would not change a thing because he "like[s] the simplicity."

Earning a six on a math league test is definitely a huge accomplishment, however, there is no real way to study or prepare for these tests. Kirk says, "The tests are hard, but the fact that studying is not required makes them less challenging." The only thing a person has is their accumulated math knowledge and luck!

Science League

By Angela Berardinelli

Science league, run by Mr.Gula, had sixteen members this year allowing there to be four teams with four students on each team. The science league usually meets once a month depending on the team. There is one competition every month for four months. When science league members attend meetings once a month, they discuss and review questions they will later be tested on. They then travel to other school districts to take those monthly tests. Science League members have a passion for science and enjoy competing against other students to see what they know.

Peer Leaders

By Molly Krumhloz

Peer leaders is an organization offered to juniors and seniors that students have to apply to be in. Each year about 30 students are chosen to be a peer leader out of all the applicants. Peer leaders help incoming freshmen adapt to the new school more smoothly and interact with others in the school. Senior peer leader Zack Kadish says, " as a peer leader [he] learned how to get freshmen to acclimate to the new school and how to make the transition much smoother for them."

Some of the events organized by peer leaders are freshmen fun night, freshmen orientation, middle school presentations, and freshmen pizza day. Peer leader Krista Delia says, "My favorite event is freshmen fun night because I am able to interact with the new freshmen with pizza and games and make the freshmen feel welcomed."

Being a peer leader has "given [him] a bigger sense of responsibility and has made the freshmen thankful that we are there for them and able to help them," claims Kadish. Peer leaders is definitely going to continue to progress with its ability to help incoming freshmen.

Peer Mediators

By Christina Apicella

The peer mediators at Jonathan Dayton are behind the scene peacemakers. This club consists of fifteen juniors and seniors hand-picked from the peer leader club. Miss Sista, the school counselor, runs this organization. Peer Mediators are required to go through various classes of training in order to be prepared to handle any situation.

Senior Rachel Miller, states that "members of the club want to make students feel comfortable when coming to a mediator with a problem or situation." Members of the club swear to confidentiality not to tell any other party other than those involved about the situations they mediate. Students should feel that they can come to us "in confidentiality," says Molly Krumholz. Overall, this is a great program that diffueses many situations.

The JDHS Choir

The Dayton Choir contains about 30 members and meets every Tuesday and Thursday morning to rehearse and have a great time. The group sings a variety of music from classical pieces to contemporary pieces like "For The Longest Time" by Billy Joel.

Being a part of the choir is not only for singing for entertainment, it's just as competitive as a sport. According to senior Johnny Ferreira, the choir goes to competitions in Six Flags every year where they sing two of their best songs for judges to adjudicate them on.

When reflecting upon the large number of freshmen that joined this year, senior Johnny Ferreira states, "There are plenty of new faces and new talents that I believe make this a very unique and strong group."

Concert Band

Concert Band has been a popular activity many Jonathan Dayton High School students get involved in. According to senior Jessica Friedman, people should join the band 'because they can meet a lot of nice people and get a greater understanding in music." The concert band meetings take place in the band room on Mondays and Wednesdays during activity period.

There are many entertaining parts of concert band that causes the members to love it even more. 'I like being able to play music with my friends and the music that we play," stated senior Jessica Friedman, who has been playing flute since forth grade. Friedman mentioned that '[her] family is very interested in music and [she] always wanted to play an instrument," so that's why she started. When discussing her future plans, Friedman stated that she 'would really like to continue playing the flute in college."

Like Friedman and senior Peter Sitomer has been playing the trumpet for years since he was in the third grade and decided to play the trumpet because his older brother played an instrument and '[he] wanted to be just like him." Sitomer loves playing in concert band, and although he doesn't exactly plan on continuing playing the trumpet after high school, he's enjoyed being part of the group all these years.

Overall, those in concert band agree that being a part of the band is an amazing experience.

Pep Band

The Pep Band, in their new uniforms, is a group of diverse students who all share the same love for music. Francisco Mena said being a part of the Pep Band "Is all about raising school spirit and morale at the football games."

Students in Pep Band practice every Monday and Wednesday after school led by Mr. Lora, the new teacher this year. Although needing to adjust to a new teacher, senior Tom Losito said, "We loved growing together as a better band from last year, although Mr. Slate is missed."

Mr. Lora brought about many changes this year, one requiring all members to memorize their music. Also new this year, the Pep Band got the opportunity to wear blue and orange uniforms which Dayton hasn't seen since the 80's. The uniforms not only help the band to look more professional, but sound more professional as well.

Everyone in Pep Band is full of pride and passion making there never be a dull moment!

Glee Club

When it comes to singing and having fun there's only one place to be, the Glee Club. This is a student-run club that students join simply for the enjoyment of singing. Usually their meetings are held at one of the member's houses and they decide what to do next or where to go. The members sing everything from pop, rock, Broadway, and even some older music as well.

Aside from singing at school events, the group sang for small audiences around the area. This holiday season, they went to the Overlook Hospital to sing Christmas songs in the lobby to spread the warm holiday spirit.

Senior Johnny Ferreira, one of the club's members, says singing makes him "feel really good and it is a form of self-expression." That is what the members from the Glee Club share and it is the reason they get together.

Dawg Print

Dawg Print club members, advised by Mrs. Rooney-Kuhn, work together every quarter to create the school's newspaper. Senior Brett Biebelberg has the role of Editor in Chief.There are editors for every section. Senior and Business Manager Annie Milak ensures that the Dawg Print has the funds to run properly. As a writer as well, she describes the meetings as "big intellectual part[ies]". Milak decided to join Dawg Print after having a job as an editor over the summer. She "really liked the whole process of it, so [she] thought, why not?" Annie has learned "how to write in a way that will interest people instead of just spitting facts out on paper." Milak would recommend that anyone who enjoys writing should join Dawg Print. "The Dawg Print is a great place to make friends who have common interests in anything going on in the world today. Every conversation leads to a great discussion, and every voice is always heard."

YEARBOOK CLUB

Clubs/Sports Section Editors Arlenis Rodriguez and Krista Delia

This year's yearbook class had an amazing time creating the yearbook for the school year. Not only did the staff come up with the theme and design each page, but they also learned the interview process and ways to improve their writing. Overall, the yearbook class's goal was "to make a creative yearbook that everyone would enjoy," stated Kristin Hankerson.

The yearbook is designed online, which makes it much easier for the staff to design assigned pages and meet deadlines because they can add and delete whenever needed. Each of the 20 members has a different topic, and with the help of Editors- in- Chief, Ross Dorman and Alexa McCaffrey, the pages are edited and finalized.

All the effort put into this yearbook by the senior staff was worth it because the students of Jonathan Dayton will always be able to remember all the great times they had in high school, especially for the class of 2012!

Jargon Magazine

With a reputation as being one of the most creative clubs in Jonathan Dayton High School, Jargon's literary magazine, advised by Mrs. Kuszmerski since 2009, has been entertaining students. Jargon is filled with amazing art, short stories, poetry, and essays. Students have been able to publish their creative works in the Jargon magazine, which is distributed at the end of each year. Junior Jessica Videña, Fundraiser Manager of Jargon, says, "[she] ha[s] been able to express [herself] through art and writing."

The club members have many great memories of the club, especially when the group gets together to arrange all of the pages for each issue. Not only is this a fun club but Herlide Joseph states that "being the Co-Editor-in-chief of Jargon magazine will help [her] in [her] college application to show how well-rounded [she is] in a leadership position."

The Jargon Club members, along with Mrs. Kuszmerski, hope to have more students submit their creative work to be published in the magazine.

STRINGS

The strings orchestra, led by Mr. Hilton, gives students a great opportunity to express their talents through the use of various stringed instruments. It is a chance for all students to get together and create beautiful music. They perform numerous concerts over the course of the school year, both in school and out. Performing at the Six Flags competition is the highlight of the end of a successful year. Students in the orchestra have amazing talents and put many hours into practicing to play their best. Not everyone appreciates the sound of these instruments and end up never knowing how beautiful and relaxing it could be to take some time out and just listen and learn about it, so make sure to check them out at one of our school events.

STUDENT COUNCIL

Student council is a huge part of the Jonathan Dayton community. From the homecoming dance, to barbecues, to coffee houses, both the executive board, and the class boards, have outdone themselves this year. The student council member's bonds were even more outstanding than what they have accomplished. Executive Board Secretary Leah Cunningham said that her favorite part of student council is "planning the events, and having a good time with all of [her] fellow student council members."

This school activity is a great way to get involved. Senior board member Krista Delia stated that for a freshman "It's a great way to meet all of the upperclassmen and to get involved in the school!"

At monthly meetings, the younger students get to interact with the upperclassmen to plan events under the leadership of Executive President Brett Biebelberg. Over the past four years, Brett has been a vital part of the Jonathan Dayton Student Council. According to Biebelberg, "Participating in student council has been a great experience. I will miss being a part of it next year."

Restaurant Club

Without the leadership and determination of seniors Molly Gozlan, Erica Korieocha, Zohar Hasson and Tara Strober, the Restaurant Club at Jonathan Dayton would not exist. This particular club is not one for the future lawyers or doctors of America; it is a club for people to "get together to host and cook for events and learn skills that [one] wouldn't ordinarily learn in a classroom," according to Gozlan.

Gozlan, Korieocha, and Hasson started this club in the hope of making it a place where people could come do something they enjoy without the stress and pressure of homework. According to Gozlan, "Restaurant club is the best club in the school," with 50 reliable members. But, to Gozlan, "it's not the number that counts, but the people who do the work."

Above: Molly Gozlan and Tara Strober, the two vice presidents of the club.

To cater for an event, it takes the club tons of planning and prepping to make that event run smoothly. The club caters for numerous schools and organizations, but Gozlan admits, "Catering for special needs schools is the most exciting." Catering for special needs schools is so special to the club because the kids get so into the event and the club clearly makes a difference in each of their days.

Unfortunately for the club, Gozlan, Korieocha, Hasson and Strober graduate in June, but, they plan to pass down the role of leadership to keep the club alive in Dayton.

Gay Straight Alliance

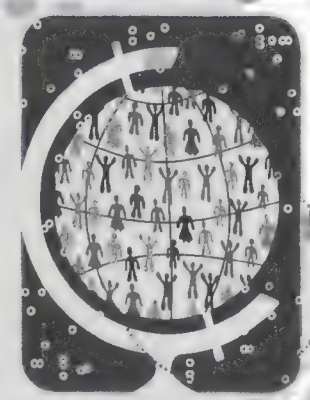

By Kristin Hankerson

As a newly formed club in Jonathan Dayton High School, Gay Straight Alliance is an inspirational club, aiming to unite people of all sexual orientations. This club, run by advisors Mrs. Chomko, Mr. Krumholz, and Ms. Rooney-Kuhn, has made a great impact on teachers and students alike.

Mrs. Chomko, along with Ms. Rooney-Kuhn and Mr. Krumholz, was inspired to create this club to "provide a safe place for people who are struggling with their identities and have supporters there for them." This club has created a great following, due to "[stimulating] discussions with group members about how we can prevent people from feeling isolated and have people to turn to." Especially following the vast amounts of teen suicides this past year, GSA, according to Chomko, "[brought] to light the discrimination of LGBT children."

Involving such a strong topic, like sexual orientation, this club "[hasn't] received any negative comments against the club, and many people actually support it." This club truly has a very positive mission, and many people should be inspired to join. This club will definitely have a large backbone for years to come and will only grow stronger.

"Acceptance of others, their looks, their behaviors, their beliefs, bring you an inner peace and tranquillity -- instead of anger and resentment."

And we'll keep on fighting till the end,...

DAYTON FOOTBALL

"Blue is the color, football is the game. We're all together, and winning is our aim. So cheer us on through the sun and rain" - Chelsea FC

By Arlenis Rodriguez

Having faced a challenging football season, Dayton football players hang up their jerseys and call it a year. With the season ending and the final standings being (5-5), Captains Matt Lyna and Joseph Policastro both agreed that the toughest game of the season was the opening game against New Providence in which Dayton lost 48-13. "It was definitely the hardest because once we turned over the ball, New Providence executed off our mistakes," said Matt Lyna.

The team did play some outstanding winning games against Roselle Park (31-7) and Dayton's biggest rival David Brearly (19-7). Through the sweat and pain of workng out at six in the morning and staying late for practice, Dayton football players always remained a family of brothers. "Some of our team traditions are 'Wing Night' every Wednesday and Chalk Talk every day before a game," said Matt Lyna. Joseph Policastro also added, "Team pasta dinner every Thursday, in which our biggest fans our parents join" is another great tradition.

Both Captains agreed that Dayton football will continue to be strong through the upcoming years with so many athletic and bold players. "There is no doubt about it, Dayton football will go far in the future," concluded Matt Lyna.

Fall Cheerleading

By Cassidy Ebert

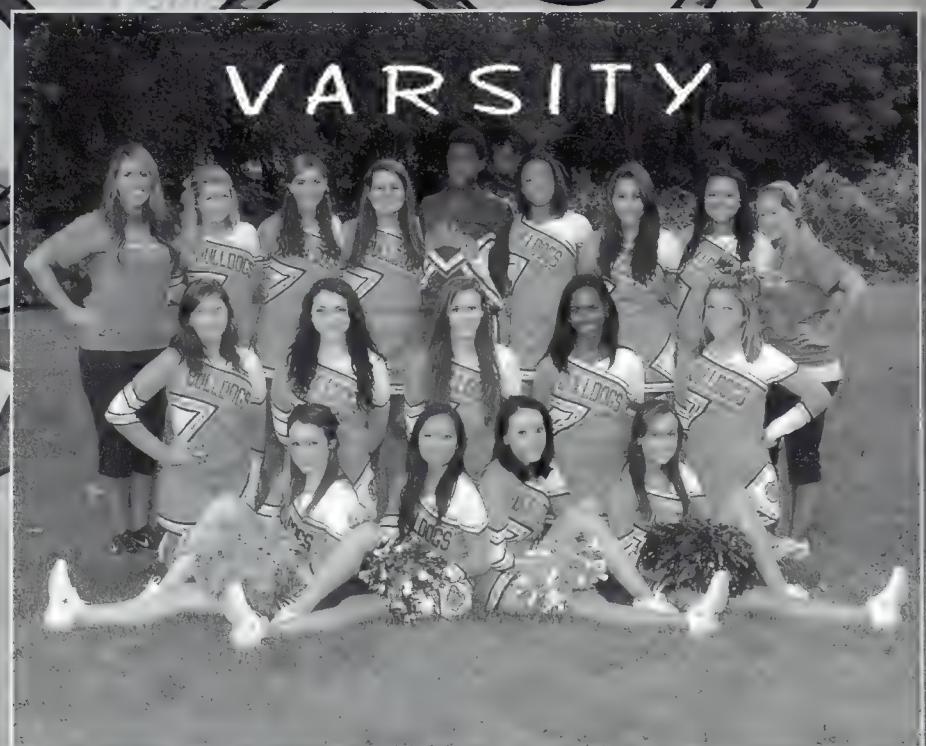

Cheerleaders help lead the crowd in cheering for their team. That's why Zoe Lyle, Cheerleading Captain, loves being at every game and cheering loudly when her team does well. On Fridays and Saturdays, she and fellow cheerleader Cara Bibbo, along with the entire Jonathan Dayton cheerleading squad, dance, tumble, cheer, and jump for their football team.

Bibbo's favorite memory was the first game night, when "when [they] got to be on TV on News 12 New Jersey." Her favorite benefit of being a cheerleader is "wearing [her] uniform to school on game days to show school spirit," and spending time with her cheering mates, who she says are "like a family." Lyle says the most memorable part of cheerleading for her was becoming Captain, and "[She] finally get[s] to do the things [she] want[s] to."

Both girls agree that there is still plenty of time for a social life outside of cheering. Cheerleading has provided both girls with some important lessons. For Bibbo, it is learning how to work as a team. For Lyle, it is learning the game of football.

Bibbo encourages students interested in cheerleading to "try [their] best at tryouts." Lyle agrees and adds, "The coaches can always tell who really wants it." For both, it has been a great experience and has given them a great pride in their team and their school.

Boys Soccer

By: Kristin Hankerson

As one of the most exhilarating sports in Jonathan Dayton High School, boys soccer continues to hold its reputation as a "powerhouse". With a championship title under their belt and such a successful season last year, this group knew what was expected from them. This season, ten seniors are anchoring the team, providing experience and power. Following an impressive season last year, this talented team lost many of their star seniors. However, with the introduction of a new team, they rose to the occasion, putting forth an impressive performance. According to senior captain Eytan Boclin, "[they] knew replacing last year's seniors would be difficult, but everyone stepped up and took more responsibility." The team's diligence and perserverance truly showed this year, ending with a 16- 3-1 record. Senior Ryan Cutino stated that "[he] is satisfied with the team's performance this year."

None of the team's success could be praised without mentioning Coach Fabiano. He aspires to make the team the best it could be, by training the players to be better. Cutino explains that Fabiano has "provided [them] with a relaxed environment to practice and play in." Not only does Fabiano provide physical training towards excellence, Boclin adds that he has given advice to the players, as well. "He's told me to be confident and enjoy myself, which has gotten me to perform the best I have in a long time." The team's success has continued, leading to a win against New Providence in the sectional quarterfinals.

Hard work and dedication has driven this team towards greatness, winning the conference title. Judging by this team's consistency, success will reign supreme for years to come.

Girls Soccer

by Christina Apicella

The 2011 soccer season was a "fun and unforgettable" one for Jonathan Dayton's Lady Bulldogs, claim Captains Emily MacDonnell and Kaylin Mahoney. Concluding the season with a record of twelve wins and six losses, the team played well, despite the loss of seven seniors last year. Although a challenging season, the team's chemistry remained strong and "everyone on the team respects one another which helps both on and off the field," states MacDonnell.

Coach Lynch really worked the girls during practice to prepare them for upcoming games. Senior Casey Sheehey strongly believes, "the shooting drills were the most effective drill for our team. Our shots have really improved since last season."

Seniors on the team agreed that they are going to miss the bonfires, team dinners and all the girls on the team greatly. "It's a bitter sweet moment," says senior Anna Lies, "We've been looking forward to our senior soccer season since freshman year, yet we don't want it to end."

GIRLS TENNIS

By Summer Kanfield

The Girls Varsity Tennis team consists of seven vigorous girls led by Co-captions senior Leah Cunningham and junior Alexandra Golden. Senior Leah Cunningham plays first singles; junior Alexandra plays second singles, while Jennifer Kuczynski plays third singles. Senior Allision Knapp and junior Blessing Martins take the position of first doubles and junior Catherine Coleman and senior Brooke Lantier play second doubles. Together, they make an outstanding team.

For those who feel tennis is an easy game to play, "They haven't had Mrs. Saladino as their coach!" stated senior Leah Cunningham. Cunningham feels tennis is a rigorous sport requiring a "large amount of conditioning." But aside from the training and the sport itself being a good workout, Cunningham's favorite part about tennis is "practicing with [her] awesome team because [they] have fun and grow as players at the same time." Junior Catherine Coleman claims that playing tennis can impact players' lives by "channeling their anger about something and causing them to be less stressed." According to Coleman there is something empowering when she gets "the perfect volley and win[s] the point afterwards."

There's a lot to learn about tennis that many people don't realize. For starters mastering the backhand in tennis is very important because "if the ball's going towards the backhand side, it's easer to position yourself and that way you wont have to lose the point of the shot," according to Coleman. Cunningham adds that it is also "impossible to win if you play with a negative attitude." When playing doubles, teamwork is important. Learning to trust a partner can be challenging, but it is necessary to create a dynamic partnership

As a result, creating the best team ends up creating the best memories. Cunningham's most memorable moment was when her team beat New Providence her junior year and when her 2010 team won conference. When reflecting upon the season, Coleman's most memorable part was "when senior Brooke Lantier hit a great shot and the girl on the other team fell on her face trying to get the ball."

For people who are interested in tennis, both Coleman and Cunningham have insightful advice. Coleman says, "Practice a lot because you will improve in games and you will notice it." Cunningham advises prospective players to "Workout before preseason because conditioning will make you feel like you're dying."

CROSS COUNTRY

BY MOLLY GOZLAN

The Dayton Cross Country team's 2011 season has been a great one with the girls team qualifying for Group for the first time since the 2009 season. The runners have improved their times while forming great friendships along the way. Gold Letter Winner Elizabeth Karan smiled as she stated, "It's great when [the team] ran in a group and talked. It's not just a sport, it's a social thing." Coach Zika added that the best part of this fall sport is "the friendship between the runners."

Although the team is extremely close, the members welcomed the incoming freshmen with open arms. Freshman runner Mia Herrel joined because she "knew that [she] would be in shape for basketball." This challenging sport is definitely a way to get in shape. On any given day the team can be seen running through the town, challenging themselves and striving to reach their goals. Zika elaborated this point, saying that cross-country is "a great way to get in shape and stay in shape."

The team will miss its graduating seniors, but will strive to break records in the years to come."

Outstanding Senior

Senior Ben Castor has been a valuable part of the Dayton Cross Country team since freshman year. In his sophomore year, he placed 10th at Conferences. By his junior year, he placed 6th at the same meet. In his senior year he took 3rd place at Conferences, and 4th place at Sectionals. Aside from being an excellent runner, he has also been a great role model for underclassmen with his determination, and love of running. Although graduating, his legacy will remain at Dayton.

GIRLS VOLLEYBALL

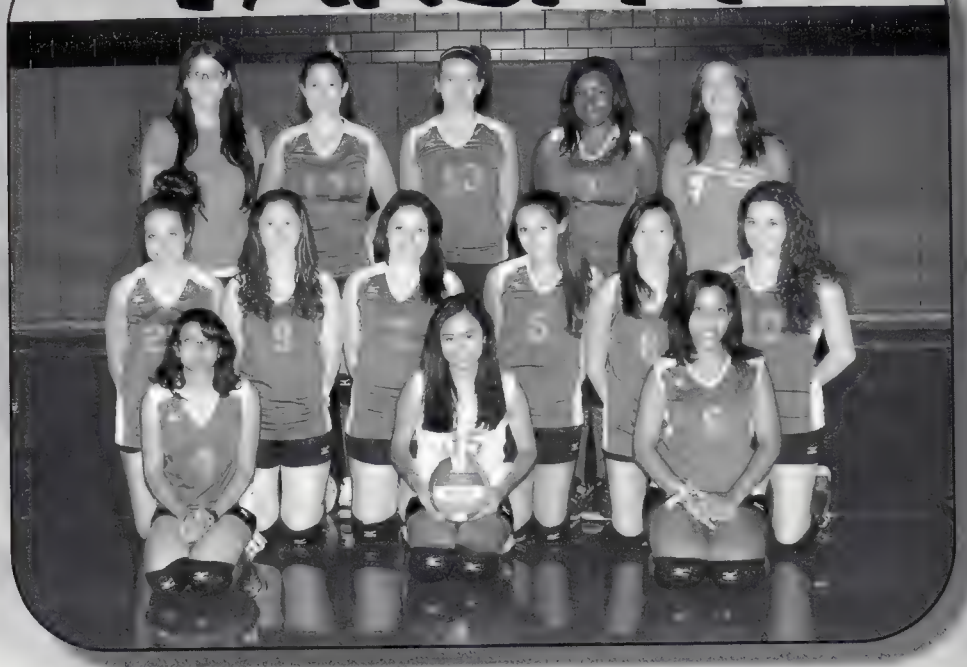

By Sandy Casas

Girls Volleyball at Dayton is a sport offered during the fall season. The volleyball team plays the duration of the season with the hopes to play for the title of Sectional Champions and then State Champions. Ending the season with a respectable 12 and 9 record, the team took both their wins and losses in stride and focused on how to improve as a team on the court.

The team was on a winning streak this season, but endured a tough loss to Summit's "Kent Place". Although losing a match is "upsetting at first," claims senior Kristin Hankerson, "we take the loss as wanting to play harder for the next game." While the team's strengths are "in its serves", according to senior player Ashley Copeland, when reflecting back on the season, the team needed to better improve in covering the court and returning the opposition's serves.

However, it is not all about winning for these girls. Senior Ashley Copeland tells the girls not to let the losses get them down. It's just as important "to play their best and just have fun." In the end, these girls aren't just volleyball partners; they are more like family.

Gymnastics

"Release your inhibitions!" - Natasha Bedingfield

There are many sports representing Jonathan Dayton High School that are conducted in the fall, one of which is gymnastics. This year's gymnastics team is very small compared to past years consisting of 6 girls.

"Each day the team practices at Surgeants Elite in Westfield for two hours after school," Dayton freshman Melissa Pearl explained, "giving [us] a lot of time to practice before a big meet."

The athletes also had a lot of experience before joining the high school gymnastics team. "I have been doing gymnastics competitively for 6 years," Dayton freshman Bari Sandler stated.

Although there have been a few injuries along the way, the gymnastics team is having a successful season and are working to their potential with their coach Maryann Ragozino who teaches them new moves, as well as cheering them on throughout every meet.

After practicing all year long the bowling team was ready to make a comeback from last year. Since its return 3 years ago, the bowling team had high hopes for this year. The matches took place at Linden Lane every Monday and Wednesday. Before each match, Senior Tom Losito said, "We get a pep talk from Mr. Fabiano which pumps everyone up before we start."

Having such a small team doesn't bother anyone since they all work together to try to defeat their opponents. Senior Dillon Reiss's favorite part of being on the bowling team is, " Enjoying good laughs and having a great time with his friends."

SWIMMING

The swim team consisting of students from Jonathan Dayton, David Brearley High Schools, Academy for Information technology and Magnet is a sport that many students enjoy being apart of. Senior Francisco Mena describes the team not just as friends, but "are more like a family."

The swimmers spend most of their time inside the water, practicing and preparing themselves as hard as they can for their next meet. As Francisco says, "we train and practice our breathing, stroke, and endurance." Junior Jessica Videña says, "We train all year for counties and everything we do during the season leads to the race you swim."

Even though the swimmers didn't have the best record, in the end all of the swimmers will take with them a special memory from the 2011-2012 season.

Boys Basketball

After having a difficult season, Dayton basketball players put down their basketballs and called it a year. Senior Captains Andrew Homlish and Josh Weber both agreed that the toughest game of the season was the game against Roselle. "It was a hard game because we lost by 3 points and we were close the whole entire game," said Josh Weber.

The team did play some outstanding winning games that they won against Union Catholic (47-46), Brearly (71-34) and Clark (64-54). Practicing six times a week, staying late and waking up early, Josh Weber and Andrew Homlish's duties as captains were to lead, motivate and mediate the team.

Having great junior players like Anthony Cioffi, Isaiah Rogers and Elijah Brown, Josh Weber concluded, "Dayton Basketball's future looks bright and I'm proud of the players we're leaving behind. They will take Dayton basketball far."

Girls Basketball

The Girls Basketball team is a very tight group of girls with one goal this season; to win. Leading the team this year are senior Tri-Captains Emily MacDonnell, Anna Lies, and Jen Kuczynski. Despite the tough competition they faced this season, Coaches Dave Rennie and Dave Campbell had very high expectations for the team.

After opening many eyes last season, going to the Union County semi-finals as the twelfth seed, beating the fourth and fifth seed in the process, these girls had a very bright future ahead. According to tri- captain Kuczynski, " [they] have between twenty and twenty five girls on the team and for the first time in years [they] have a junior varsity and a freshman team."

Tri- Captains Kuczynski, Lies, and MacDonnell were devoted to make their last season, "a one to remember." MacDonnell especially wanted to show the county and state that "Dayton is no longer the underdog." The three captains agree that the main goal this season was to win counties, not to "make a statement" like seasons past. According to Captain Lies, "The thing [she] will miss the most is the teaming bonding." Captain MacDonnell will also "miss the girls on the team the most. The chemistry [they] have is unique and the personality as a team is undoubtedly awesome; you can't find that everywhere." That just goes to prove how united and dependent this team is on one another.

The talent on this team doesn't just arise from the trio of seniors, though. Each of the underclassmen have unique strengths to keep the team going past this powerful schedule this winter season. The greatest quality of this lady Bulldog team, though, is the drive to win and make history, which these girls are sure to do.

GO TEAM

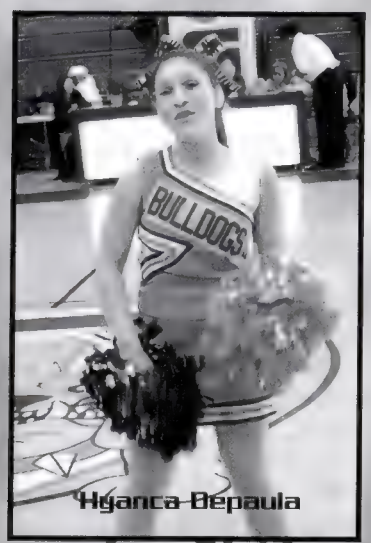

by Shannon Boyle

After a short break from the fall season Dayton cheerleaders transition into the winter season. Once the football season ends, they bring it indoors and exude Dayton pride at the basketball games. They show their spirit on the sidelines cheering on the bulldogs. Captains Cara Bibbo and Michaela Loesberg help lead this small group of peppy girls through strenuous practices. According to senior Cara Bibbo, the team "practices usually up to 4 days a week, but it usually depends on the basketball schedule."

Unlike cheering in the fall season, winter cheerleaders compete. Senior Cara Bibbo explained that this year they competed at a Union County cheerleading exhibition. Whether at a competition, on the bleachers or on the court, Dayton cheerleaders love to show their spirit.

Hockey

Jonathan Dayton's winter hockey consists of a Junior Varsity team and a Varsity team coached by Coach Trimble and Coach Sona. The team consists of players from each grade level, however, Jake Rudolph, captain of the team, is the only senior playing on the hockey team this year. Jake Rudolph has been playing hockey since he was six years old. Rudolph says, "I play center and it has always been my favorite position to play." Jake has been playing on the varsity team for Jonathan Dayton all four years of high school.

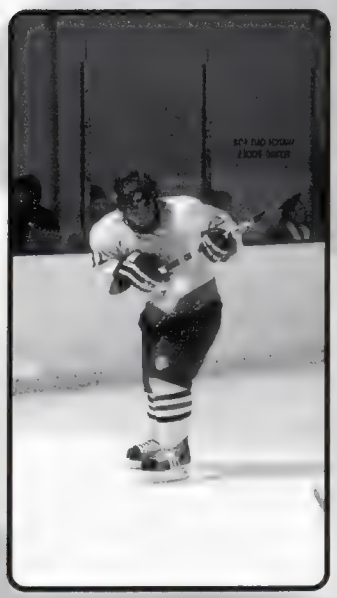

When asked what inspired Jake to play hockey he replied, "I wasn't good at any other sport and was watching hockey and decided I wanted to try playing." Jake has played on many travel teams along with Dayton's team. Jake says the coaches are, "Supportive with a young team and it is clear they know what they're doing."

Members of the team, both old and new, have worked hard to do the best this season and prepare for the upcoming years of hockey ahead.

WINTER TRACK

The Jonathan Dayton winter track team takes no breaks. Even in the middle of the winter, they can be seen running and jumping through the halls. Led by captains Sigal Hasson, Ben Castor, and Peter Sitomer, the team improved while the runners have a good time. Sigal Hasson loved "being with such a great team, amazing coaches, and amazing managers," and says that people should come out for winter track because, "they would have a lot of fun... they would meet a lot of nice people, and have a great time."

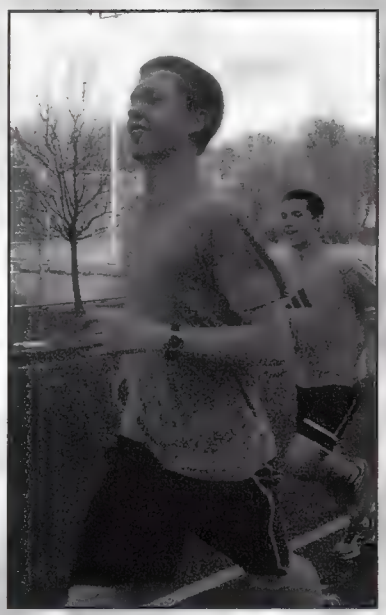

Although winter track is fun, it is also challenging. The runners have to "[go] against other teams, [not knowing] how good [the other team] is until the meet begins." The stress of the important meets can be hard to get through, but, "everyone is close on the team, and [they] give each other advice before a big race to calm them down."

Whether the team is "winning medals, hanging out with [the] team, [or] getting personal bests," they are always enjoying themselves.

According to senior Matt Samansky, his favorite thing about the wrestling season is "being able to stay in shape." Intense practices, mile runs, and making weight are just minor preparations for this team. "Every practice begins with a run, and is then followed by drills that target basic wrestling technique."

The overall goal is winning matches, which is very difficult because the team is not always sure of what their opponent will bring to the mat. The first step of being on this team is the so called "hell week" that Samansky refers to. Although no one is cut from the team. "The first week [of the season] is filled with intense practices that separate which people will continue," claims Samansky.

To prepare for matches, Samansky tells of a very strict regiment that he always follows for ultimate success. "I try to think to think about what I am going to do when the match begins, and what moves I will implement. It works out from there based on what my opponent does. I try to stay as hydrated as possible."

Overall Samansky enjoys the wrestling season except for one very major factor of it: fasting to make weight. "It is difficult because I like food," says Samansky, "and not being able to eat is awful."

GOLF

By Molly Gozlan and Molly Krumholz

Jonathan Dayton's golf team consists of 6 people who are selected to start in the matches, with 2 alternates. Dayton's golf team is very competitive with only a minimum amount of people selected to be on the team. In order to play for the team one needs to be committed, show up to practice on time, and be a good student. All players participate in the practices and team meetings, but only the varsity players play in every match. Senior golf player John Hess has only been playing golf since his junior year of high school, but started playing because his grandfather and father inspired him to play golf and help him to get better and better. John says, "Golf is something to do that he enjoys." Hess says, "The coaches are good and serve as a positive influence on him." He plans on continuing to play golf after high school and hopes to have the opportunity to play on some of the nicest golf courses.

Baseball

Coaches Abbate, Mullman, Berger, and Steinmen led the Dayton Bulldogs through a great season. These coaches did a great job keeping the team focused and together as a family. This year's team consisted of a strong group of seniors who worked together with determination to lead the team.

Whenever there wasn't a game taking place, the team continued to work hard at their practices. These practices consisted of warm-ups, drills, throwing, team defense, and base running. Everyone on the team stayed focused and showed consistency in every game and practice. The team worked well together and Senior Joe Policastro stated, "We were all determined to reach our full potential, we gave it our all this season."

Although they all enjoy baseball, there were many challenges that they faced along the way. The team had to remember not to get ahead of themselves, to work on one game at a time, and to really stay focused." Senior Tom Losito said, " [He] knows that our team worked as hard as we could without having any regrets." The seniors were all concentrated on representing Dayton for their last season together.

With a new program and head coach this season, the girls softball team had high hopes of winning this season. Leading the team this year are seniors captains Krista Delia and Kelli Murray, and seniors Leah Cunningham and Rachel Miller. Despite the adversity they faced in the beginning of the season, Coach Bell and Coach DeLallave believed they were dealing with the team who could change the program forever.

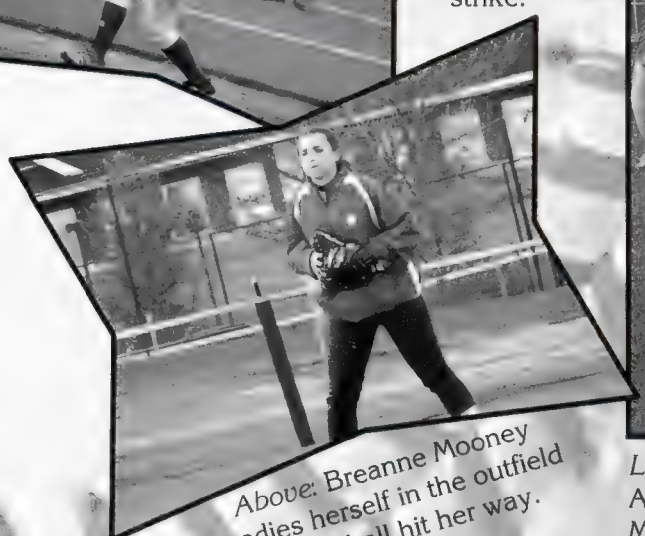

Seniors Cunningham, Delia, Miller, and Murray were devoted to make their last season, "a one to remember." Delia especially wanted to show the county and state, "Dayton is no longer the underdog." The four seniors agree that the main goal this season was to "win the conference championship, not to "make a statement" like seasons past. After finishing last season 2nd in the conference and a record over .500, the girls plan to step it up and show that they are a team who have a ton of heart and can overcome anything.

Senior Leah Cunningham and Rachel Miller were especially proud to see the schedule had changed from seasons past. "We are playing great teams this year, [we] are excited to play Kent Place. They seem to be one of the biggest challenges we will face as a team this season," explained Miller and Cunningham. Aside from the leadership from the seniors, the greatest quality of this lady Bulldog team, is the drive to win and make history, which these girls are sure to do.

Boys Tennis

By: Kristin Hankerson & Sigal Hasson

This year's tennis team brought together a magnificent group of athletes, including the eight seniors. At Rosner Park courts, the 24-person team practiced diligently to ensure a great season. Mr. Keele, the varsity coach, has been working as a tennis coach for a great amount of time. "He is always funny, and supportive, and never makes you feel like you can't go to him if you need anything. He is very approachable and very knowledgeable about the game," senior Brett Kleinschmidt declared. Mr. Keele has pushed his athletes to play to the best of their abilities against their biggest rivals, New Providence and Glen Ridge. The team suffered a great loss of seniors last year, which meant that "off season prep was needed, and the new seniors needed to step it up," according to Coach Keele. With the players' mutual support of each other, senior Kejvi Bido says that, "the key to our success is confidence, winning, pride, teamwork, good coaching, and having fun!"

Jonathan Dayton's astonishing spring track team led by Coaches Zika, Cozza, Kozub, and VanDeursen and Captains and seniors Peter Sitomer, Sigal Hasson, Ben Castor, Elizabeth Karan, and Tevin Knight, worked hard to motivate this team. "Practice, Practice, Practice," is the runners' motto for achieving their accomplishments. With a lot of sleep and preparation would only prepare this team for the best. So how did some of these team players become fascinated with the sport?

Managers Zohar Hasson, Molly Gozlan, and Mallory Clinton.

Senior Captain Sigal Hasson, "considered track competitions that were shown on television" to be her influence, while senior Kristin Hankerson, used the competitions themselves as motivation. "I just want to be in first place," explains Hankerson. From the prospective of other team players, "the faster you run the faster it's done" is the only motivation to help them with their nervousness before approaching the starting line.

With intense strengthening work-outs along with practicing various field events could only prepare them to be in their best shape before meets. For some players, improving on their time and personal records are their main goals for this season. With the motivation of all the runners would only lead them to their best season yet in hopes of winning and everlasting fun!

IN THE SPOTLIGHT

THE DIARY OF ANNE FRANK

Fall Drama 2011-12

by Ross Dorman

The 2011-2012 fall drama was The Diary of Anne Frank, an adaptation of the world famous diary written by a teenage Anne Frank during World War II. The Diary of Anne Frank tells the story of two families forced into hiding in Nazi occupied Amsterdam, and the conditions that they had to endure to maintain a glimmer of hope for survival. What makes the play so unique is the way in which Anne interacts with the audience through the use of asides, often stopping in the middle of a scene to provide them with her surprisingly profound insight.

Despite the heavy subject matter of the play, the cast managed to bond and have fun, while still remaining true to their characters. Julianna Pica, who played Anne's mother, Edith Frank, noticed the closeness of the cast members. "After the second or third day of rehearsal, we were friends. [By] the first week, we were family." Stage manager Harris Laufer also agreed with Pica, describing his first stage crew experience as "Awesome!"

But with all the fun and cast bonding that took place, there was even more hard work being done. The director, Mr. DeNicolo, felt that since "...this was a very heavy show, it was so important for all of the actors to understand and embrace the emotions of the piece." DeNicolo described "balancing different personalities, emotions, and talents," as being the most difficult thing about directing this play.

Andrew Batallas, who starred as Mr. Alfred Dussel, felt that playing a person who had actually existed was "more difficult" than playing a fictional character as he had "less freedoms with the character's personality." All in all, The Diary of Anne Frank was a major success on many levels. It moved many audience members to tears. The cast, crew, and Mr. DeNicolo are all proud of how their hard work and dedication paid off in the end.

The Drowsy Chaperone

This year's spring musical, The Drowsy Chaperone, is a musical within a comedy about a man who is feeling "blue" so he listens to his favorite record which then comes to life in his apartment. The show ran from March 22nd - 24th and featured a cast of thirty-two students ranging from freshmen to seniors. Michael Wang, who played the latin ladies-man Aldolpho, said, "This show is such a funny show and even when you're exhausted at rehearsal you find yourself laughing hysterically because the show is just amazing." And he definitely was not alone in his opinion. Junior Alex Golden, who played the titular Chaperone, feels that this cast was "really, really close...I'm going to miss them when this is over."

The show also featured a performance from Jackie Nese, as a bride, conflicted about whether to give up her successful career on the stage for love. The experience proved to be memorable for Nese who said that her most memorable experience from rehearsal was "when the original Gangster from the Broadway show came to talk to us." The show was also the last for seniors Ross Dorman, who played the Man in Chair, the agoraphobic Broadway fanatic who is listening to the record, and Johnny Ferreira, who played the debonair bridegroom. "We really had a sense of unity as a cast, and the story was something that we had never worked with before and the comedic timing was something that we really had to master."

The show was directed by Ms. Ashley Madison and choreographed by Ms. Stephanie Shack. When asked about what challenges doing this show presented, Madison stated that "timing is really important. The precision with lighting, and collaborating with the pit and the singers, also making period costumes is difficult.," but continued to say that she still felt "exhilarated" about the show.

All in all, the cast seemed to really enjoy the experience, and seemed excited to have the opportunity to be a part of such a fun show.

King Of Hearts

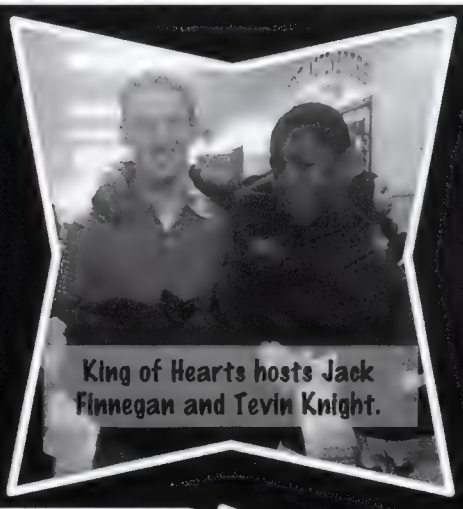

The boys dance for the ladies.

King of Hearts is an annual event consisting of boys competing in multiple competitions to try to become the "King of Hearts". Categories include formal wear, casual wear, swim wear, and talent. On the night of February 22, 2012, hosted by Jack Finnegan and Tevin Knight, ten students, Alfred Batallones, Amir Mayfield, Armond Ansari, Brendan O'Reilly, Jesse DiCocco, Justin Alfiler, Kejvi Bido, Matt Samansky, Shalaan Pressley, and Michael Wang, competed for this title.

O'Reilly, a top five finalist, decided to participate in King of Hearts because "[he] likes dancing" - which is what he did for the talent portion. "It took a very long time to prepare it". Pressley, who also made the top five, sang "Chasing Pavements" by Adele, because "[he] thought it would be fun". Alfred Batallones, third place winner, decided to participate because his friends made him. "They told me I should sing because I have talent, and I did. It was a fun experience." Michael Wang, 2nd place winner, decided to do King of Hearts because "[he] wanted to show [his] abilities to the school." For the swim suit competition, Wang decided to "portray the awkward kid who keeps his shirt on in the pool."

The winner of King of Hearts was senior Kejvi Bido who participated because "all [his] friends forced [him] to do it." Bido wore a green tuxedo for formal wear, seven jackets for casual wear, and a lifeguard outfit for swim wear. For his talent, Bido successfully completed the blazing challenge from Buffalo Wild Wings. Now that's talent!

For the past two years the senior class board has been holding a semi annual coffee house. This event has been extremely successful at bringing in profits for the class of 2012. This event is advised by Mr. DeNicolo along with the help of the senior class board. All the money goes towards both the senior gift and the senior trip. Krista Delia, a member of the senior class board said, "Ee are so proud with the turnout of the coffee house this year we have raised so much money for the class of twenty twelve". Anyone can sign up and perform; some read poems while others sing or play an instrument. The coffee house is a great creative outlet for those who would like to display their talents. Local businesses were nice enough to donate coffee, pastries and hot chocolate. Senior Matt Samansky was among those who performed. He states, "The coffee house has been a huge success, it was a great way to express yourself." Overall this is a great way to bring the students together and raise money for a good cause.

Snowball

This year's Snowball was so much fun! The black and white theme and the awesome DJ made this dance even better than the years prior. Shannon Boyle said, "The DJ was amazing!! And the food was great!" The student council spent hours decorating and blowing up balloons. Boyle was in awe, "It doesn't even look like our school gymnasium!"

"It was so cool seeing everybody in formal clothes outside of school," says Krista Delia, who is sad that this was her last Snowball. Whether the students were dancing, eating, or just hanging out, they all had a great time.

Dayton's Morning News

Ilyssa Frank and Tara Strober prepare to deliver the day's news.

Senior Jamie Ginsberg creates slides for the news.

Megan Cieri and Dawn Wilkenfeld work in the control room.

Director Tevin Knight leads the news team.

Under the guidance of Mr. Coward, and directed by Senior Tevin Knight, the Dayton morning news is recorded are aired daily. Student responsibilities range from anchoring the news to camera work to helping out behind the scenes with transitions or audio in the control room. Senior Stephy Olickal, who operates one of the three main cameras, enjoys this class and says, "It's really fun, even if you aren't a morning person!" Senior Tara Strober, who is usually an anchor, describes the mornings as "hectic and seemingly unorganized," but it is in fact "organized chaos." Strober adds, "It is not normal if it doesn't start hectically." But, sure enough, "Director Tevin Knight organizes everything and the morning news begins" and airs smoothly. Senior and Director Tevin Knight holds the most responsibility. His job is "to know everything that's going on, [and] to decide what to do and when to do it." Most difficult of all, Knight must "keep the non-morning-people working." He knows it isn't easy being the one in charge, "because all of the blame goes on [him]", however her loves doing it. Morning news requires a lot of patience and tolerance, but those skills will be fast acquired by anyone who joins the news team.

BULLDOG INFORMATION TECHNOLOGY (SUPPORT)

BY SANDY CASAS AND SUMMER KLARFELD

This is the first year that Jonathan Dayton High School has provided us with a student tech team. The tech team is called the Bulldog Information Technology (support), also known as the BIT(S), advised by Mr. Perone. The Jonathan Dayton High School BIT(S) does everything from fixing students' and teachers' laptops to installing printers. They also maintain the network if necessary and show people how to use some of the technology. "Tech helps provide hands on technological support for students and the faculty," stated senior manager Alper Donuk.

According to Donuk, "I joined the tech club because I enjoys\ helping and teaching others about technology. I also wanted to gain more expierence while working with others." Donuk explains, "I learned about the technological trouble shooting process." Junior co-manager Michael Borkenstein joined tech because he likes "working with computers outside the classroom." Borkenstein also mentioned that he "learned how to properly interact with clients."

Donuk's favorite part about tech club is "working with the technology because [he] loves it and [he] has been working with technology since he was young." After high school some BIT(S) plan, on going to college for fixing and working with technological equipment. According to Donuk, people should join tech club because "the expierence you gain is invaluable."

Two student leaders from each state were honored by being able to spend the week in Washington to experience the national government in action, from sitting in on policy addresses by Senators, cabinet members, officials from the Departments of State and Defense and directors of other federal agencies, to participating in a meeting with a Justice of the U.S. Supreme Court.
